DETAILED ACTIONElection/Restrictions

Applicant's election with traverse of Figure 1 and claims 1-3, 24-25 and 43 in Paper No. 9 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the species of figures 1-3 have a common feature in that the bypass section is located outside the body and therefore it would not be an undue burden to search all three species. This is not found persuasive because while the three species may have bypass sections that are located outside the body, each bypass section is configured in different locations on the proximal end of the guide catheter. Each embodiment has a distinct structure, is disclosed by applicant to be different embodiments and is considered to be patentably distinct. See brief description of drawings page 10 of specification. If applicant believes these species to be not patentably distinct then applicant should indicate the species as such.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claims 4-23, 26-42 and 44 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in Paper No. 9.

Claim Objections

Claims 1, 24 and 25 are objected to because of the following informalities:

In claim 1:

-the recitation of "the largest cross section" should be --a largest cross section--,

Art Unit: 3763

-the recitation of "the hydraulic cross section" should either be – a hydraulic bypass cross section – or – a bypass cross section –,

In claim 24:

-the recitation of "the largest cross section" should be –a largest cross section--,

-the recitation of "the hydraulic cross section" should either be – a hydraulic bypass cross section – or – a bypass cross section –,

In claim 25:

-the recitation of "the area" should be –an area--,

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 24-25 and 43-44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claims 24 and 43 are indefinite because the claims read as a long preamble with no transitional phrases. Transitional phrases (i.e. "comprising", "consisting essentially of" and "consisting of" define the scope of a claim. Without a transitional phrases one cannot determine the meets and bounds of the claim; one cannot determine what elements or limitations are a part of the apparatus or method.

Art Unit: 3763

Additionally, the string of "wherein" clauses that are replete within claims 1, 24 and 43, while not rendering the claims indefinite, make the claims difficult to read and rapidly understand. It is suggested, so that one may rapidly understand the limitations of the claims, that the claim limitations be set forth positively.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-3 and 24-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over McNamara in view of Cohen et al (US Pat# 5,167,239). McNamara discloses a device that includes a valve unit (60), a guide catheter (26) and a bypass section (30,46). As shown, an instrument can be inserted through the valve unit into the guide catheter. The wall of the guide catheter is close fitting for the guidewire (instrument) and the bypass section is larger than the lumen cross section, see figure 2. The length of the bypass section (46) is at least as long as the "J" shaped tip of the guidewire. However, McNamara does not disclose a guidewire with a largest cross section.

Cohen discloses an anchorable guidewire. The device includes an elongate body (12), inflatable balloon (14) and an additional infusion lumen (see 5:59+).

Art Unit: 3763

At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to substitute the guidewire of McNamara with the guidewire of Cohen. Both devices are analogous in the art and with the claimed invention; therefore, a combination is proper. Additionally, the guidewire of Cohen would provide the device of McNamara with a guidewire that could not only dissolve an occlusion within a vessel but also (i) anchor within the clot once partially dissolved and (ii) dilate a region of the clot for enhanced performance in clot removal. The motivation for the substitution can be found within the McNamara reference. Specifically, the objective of McNamara is "to provide for the extension of the infusion segment through the obstruction as the obstruction being treated dissolves or opens up". See 2:28-31. The guidewire of Cohen will help facilitate this objective by enabling the device of McNamara to anchor within the dissolved clot and help dilate any opening in the clot.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 43 would be allowable if rewritten or amended to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, set forth in this Office action.
